

WEST OAKLAND

As police forces from all over the world come together in Oakland to learn how to better suppress their respective populations, the town is seeing an influx of new capital in historically black and brown communities with long legacies of rebellion. OPD joins the Department of Homeland Security to exchange strategies with security forces from Israel, a former top competitor at Urban Shield, among others. These "counter-insurgency" tactics are used to shut down revolt and to protect the affluent, whether they are yuppies invading the Bay Area, or Israeli settlers in the West Bank.
