Sunday Morning at the Marxist Library

ESSENTIALS OF SCIENTIFIC SOCIALISM

Part of a Continuing Series

“Clarity about the aims and problems of socialism is of greatest significance in our age of transition.” Einstein’s comment remains true in our Century, when the growing interest in socialism is matched by a growing confusion about socialism. This workshop, led by Gene Ruyle of the ICSS, will be part of an ongoing series seeking to overcome this confusion through study and discussion, focusing on the classics of scientific socialism. In this session, we plan to continue our examination of the classic work by Engels, Socialism: Utopian and Scientific. In preparation, participants are urged to read, or re-read, this important document and bring a copy along with them. (It is online at the Marx & Engels Internet Archive. I will also have it on my computer to project on the screen.)

Sunday, Oct 25, 2015 - 10:30 am to 12:30 pm
6501 Telegraph Avenue, Oakland (just North of Alcatraz Ave.)

Seating is limited, so plan to come early. We start promptly.

FREE - but hat will be passed for donations to NPML

About Sunday Morning at the Marxist Library

A weekly discussion series inspired by our respect for the work of Karl Marx and our belief that his work will remain as important for the class struggles of the future as they have been for the past.
